Each looked well worthy to sit on a guildhall dais, and to be made an alderman--a dignity their good wives would not have the smallest objection to. Line 371.--That he can; that he knows. Line 372.--Was schaply, $c.; was fit to be an alderman. Line 373.--Catel; goods, property, chattels. Line 375.--Elles certeyn; else certainly. Line 376.--Madame; a title of honour formerly given to women of quality only. Line 377.--VigUis (F. vigiles); festival eves. Speght says: It E2 The COOK. A Cook thei hadde with hem for the nones, To boyle chyknes and the mary bones, 3SO And poudre tnarchant tart, and galyngale. Wel cowde he knowe a draught of Londone ale. He cowde roste, sethe, broille, and frie, Make mortreux, and wel bake a pye. But gret harm was it, as it semede me, 385 That on his schyne a mormal hadde he; For blankmanger he made with the beste. was the manner in times past, upon festival eves, called vigils, for parishioners to meet in their church-houses, or church-yards, and there to have a drinking fit for the time. Here they used to end many quarrels betwixt neighbour and neighbour. Hither came the wives in comely manner, and they that were of the better sort had their mantles carried with them, as well for show as to keep them from cold at table. Line 377.--To go to vigilies al before means to take precedence over all in going to the vigils, &c. Line 378.--Rially i-bore; royally carried. Line 379--For the nones; for the nonce, for the occasion. The A.-S. for than aenes, literally means, for the once, for the occasion. Line 381.--Poudre tnarchant; pulverized spices. Poudre marchant tart; a sharp, pungent, flavour...
